More Awards » Learn more Edit Sandhya had always dreamed of becoming a police officer. She was fearless and blunt, and set herself the goal of fighting the evils of society. Her father encouraged her dream, and just when it was within her reach, tragedy struck. Her parents pass away. Her brother marries her to a confectionery family where women only work in the kitchen. She becomes part of a family that obliged her to be a housewife within a few days; Her life had transformed Topsy-turvy. With a heavy heart, she decides to give up her dreams and longings, but her pastry husband; Suraj learns about her dream and her sacrifice for the good of his family. Although only half-educated, Suraj felt the burning desire in Sandhya to follow her dreams and achieve her goals of becoming a policewoman. Despite everything that stood in his way, Suraj decides to support her on her way. But will he be able to convince his own mother, Bhabo, whose firm belief was that the place of a woman ...
